Friends of Mr. Caouette

PREMIER BENNETT RUSHES to the support of the Social candidates on Vancouver Island. But what precisely are these gentlemen supporting in national politics?

They are supporting, first, a party dominated by Mr. Real Caquette, who elected 26 Quebec members to the last Parliament while Mr. Thompson elected only four in English-speaking Canada.

Mr. Caouette shocked most Canadians by announcing not long ago than his idols were Adolph Hitler and Benito Mussolini but apparently he does not shock Mr. Bennett or the Social Credit candidates here-Indeed, Mr. Bennett supported Mr. Caouette for the national leadership of the party against Mr. Thompson.

While Mr. Caouette lost the leadership in name he is now leader in fact, simply because Social Credit is a significant force only in his bailliwick, the rural ridings of Quebec.

Any Social Credit vote cast here on Vancouver Island is a vote of confidence in Mr. Caouette and the old-time French Canadian nationalism which he has revived under a new label. Those who believe in Caouette and his separatist French Canadian principles should certainly vote for Social Credit.

But Social Credit in the original version of the late Major Douglas has been largely forgotten by the party using that name. What, in fact, does Social Credit stand for in contemporary politics?

It stands for almost anything and it stands on all sides of almost all questions.

Thus Mr. Thompson, vainly tryto control the uncontrollable Mr. Caouette, appears as the image of a solid businessman who would balance the national budget, put the nation's affairs in order and nourish the free enterprise system.

He also stands for the massive inflation of the currency which would be ruinous not only to all the public's savings but to the private enterprise system as well.

Social Credit stands for the expansion of international trade but by inflating the currency and raising all prices it would destroy Canada's ability to compete in the world market.

Social Credit stands exactly no where on defence policy because its western and Quebec wings cannot

Mr. Thompson indicated some time ago that Canada should consider the acceptance of nuclear weapons and fulfill its NATO commitments.

Mr. Caouette would never accept under any conditions. He boasts of his own refusal to accept military service in the last war when, as he says, he would not fight for the existing economic system of Canada. Now he sees no reason why Canada should participate seri ously in the defence of North America or Europe.

Since Social Credit was hopelessly split on the defence issue, it solemnly decided, at a recent conference, to postpone any decision of policy until after the election. De-fence, it said, should be removed politics altogether.

That is to say, the people should have no opportunity to vote on it. Citizens who vote for Social Credit must leave all military decisions to the partnership of Messrs. Thompson and Caouette without knowing what they would do because they do not know themselves.

Finally Social Credit stands for continued chaos in the nation's politics. Having no chance to form a government of its own, it hopes to prevent any party forming more thing should than a temporary, minority government.

In a Parliament of quarreling minorities it hopes to force its own ideas on a weak Liberal or Conservative ministry until it is ready to precipitate another election not long hence and complete its intended ruin of the Conservative Party.

It is on this platform of contradiction, Quebec nationalism and in-flation that the Social Credit candidates in this area are standing. Mr. Bennett, the original sponsor of Mr. Caouette, stands with them.

But in this campaign some of his old enthusiasm seems to be lacking. Perhaps he has been disenchanted with Mr. Thompson. Or perhaps he has heard from Premier Manning of Alberta, who has flatly repudiated the defence policies of Mr. Caouette. In any case, Mr. Bennett and his candidates are simply asking the people of this area to vote

Good But Not Good Enough

IN PETITIONING THE FEDeral government to avoid arming Canada with nuclear weapons, a group of UBC staff members have struck an idealistic and commendable note. But have they recognized the realities with which governments today are faced?

The professors urge Canada to maintain an independent foreign policy, to exert leadership in reducing international tension and ending arms race. Reducing International tension and ending the arms race have been two of the chief aims of Canadian foreign policy for many years. Nobody bothers to oppose us in these endeavors. But nobody does much to support us either, except by words.

If you go into the jungle and shout that you have no teeth, you are not likely to last very long. But if you shout it while standing close to a friendly and fully-toothed lion or tiger, your chances of survival are much better. That seems to be Canada's position when calling attention to our non-nuclear condition and hoping other countries will follow our example. We cannot appear sincere idealistic when it is obvious that while keeping our own hands clean of nuclear nastiness, we are depending for our protection on the nuclear strength of our neighbor and ally, the United States. Our protestations of non-nuclear righteousness can only appear hollow to other countries under such circumstances. Banning of all nuclear weapons something greatly to be desired. It is an ideal to strive toward, but it is not likely to be achieved if you weaken your voice so that no one will listen to it. Do ban-the-bombers really believe that Russia would turn amiable and compliant if the United States suddenly stripped itself of nuclear weapons? Nothing in human nature or in history gives weight to such a belief. It would mean only that the world's greatest democratic force had lost its independence and its hope of ultimately achieving a non-nuclear world, be-cause a strong East wouldn't listen to a weak West.

By refusing to back up our commitments to the United States with nuclear help as required, by refusing to take part in a NATO nuclear defence, as the professors urge, Canada would only weaken the world's best hope of ultimate non-nuclear peace, and would be doing it while still nestling under the nuclear peace. clear wing of our allies and at their Nuclear disarmament by all means; let us never lose sight of that goal. But nuclear disarmament of both sides at once, not just of our side. Until then, even ivory towers will need bombproof basements.

Will We Have to Wait Our Turn?

DISCUSSING POPULATION of natural wilderness, Mr. Udall, U.S. secretary of the interior, told an audience the other day that the time may come when anyone wishing to visit a park or wilderness area may have to make a reservation. But that will only hold if some wilderness areas are preserved. Otherwise even reservations won't help there won't be any wild land to visit. The suggestion may appear farfetched, but the beginnings of such a trend can already be seen. Think of the places near your birthplace where you once went for picnics or camping hikes. Chances are they have now been built on or converted to some commercial use. The pace of such utilization is increasing, par-ticularly in the United States. Water and lumber needs are pressing.

Mr. Udall's fears that some day the only "outdoors" available for a day's recreation may be in the form of carnival grounds and amusement He sees sound reason for such a fear in the present trend.

That is why it is so important that we preserve our nature sanctuaries, our natural parks and wilderness areas, and add to the few we now have.

words, every other type of human activity seems to get a priority in the use of natural areas, whereas park use and recreation may prove to be the most valuable use to which the land could have been put.

But once used otherwise, land does not make good parks. We look to science today to solve most of our problems. But wilderness is a mat-ter for nature, not science. As Mr. Udall puts it, "Science cannot provide or replace true wilderness at any price.

wealth we can.

How to Learn Without Actual Harm

AS though in answer to the sunny absorb the lesson without the hin- wavelets or of a clear current trickling us, someone has developed a method of teaching pupils in their sleep. It is true that the land-of-nod knowledge under this expert's system is imparted to a class of boys who have been put to sleep by hypnosis. But the same apply when mere sunshine breezes and soft air provide the Tobin hypnotic control. A sunbeam beats a glittering ring, a tree's waving branch is more powerful than a hypnotist's waving hand, a mossy bank hypnotist's couch, when it comes to inducing sleep.

In tests in Italy, it seems that the boys put on earphones, a recording talks them into falling asleep, and then the teacher's voice on tape reads them, say, a poem, and explains it. When the boys are wakened up they are able to recite the poem perfectly and explain every point covered in the lesson. The expert says that through hyp-

Even the duller boys learn better, he make them more attentive listeners in other classes.

There may be something in it. But it doesn't explain why some of us who have been walking around in a daze for years haven't learned anything, And in cities, where noises go on all night long, why don't residents wake up more knowledgeable in the morning than they went to bed the night before? Surely they must have heard SOMEthing during the night that would add to their learning.

The German negotiators headed by Defence Minister von Hassel and technicians from the Foreign Ministry were as warmly welcoming as ever. Just One University

In answer to your editorial recently, "They All Want The College" may I say, as an oldtimer here, I think we should have just one university and that should be our very own UBC at Vancouver, B.C.

Victoria should just be a branch of UBC, and if other branches are needed, in our province, and on our Island, let us have them.

aln the past our Old Victoria College did pur out some brilliant students under the late Doctor Paul, and his fellow associates, in fact I would say more advanced than they are today, in many cases. I think we have far too many attending college today, simply because they can't get jobs, and becially than in former years. To my mind the real cause of so many flocking to college is the fact that many can't get jobs, simply because of many married women who don't need jobs take them. That's a true fact.

'Glaring Blunders'

I am not making any special criticism of the vulgarity, blasphemy and sacrilege contained in the article entitled "O Ye Jigs and Juleps" which appeared in a recent edition of your paper. They are so apparent to any person who belongs to any branch of the Christian Church that comment is wholly superfluous.

wish to point out the glaring blunders which the writer has made and which, in my opinion, completely discredit her claim that she is quoting the words of a child of ten who wrote them some 60 years ago.

First of all, the correctness of the spelling and the easy style of the writing of the article. I have taught hundreds of children, some of them American, and I have never read anything written by a ten year old which re-motely approaches in these respects the article in question

Secondly, the child appears to be a peculiar mixture of Episcopal and Bap-tist. She mentions waters being used in her church. That would be in the Holy Communion Service. Wafers have not been in general use in any but Roman Catholic and, perhaps, Ortho-"As a culture develops," Mr. dox Greek churches till fairly recent Udall says, "wilderness is the last times. I have never seen them used resource to acquire value." In other in any other church till about 30 years ago. It is highly improbable that they were used in a small town in the southern States as long as 60 years ago.

Thirdly, how would a child of 10 nderstand the significance of the rite of Confirmation. She states that the age of candidates is 12 years, and that is younger than is general in Episcopalian churches. She would never have at-tended Confirmation Classes, but would have been still in junior Sunday School

Fourthly, in the supposed Baptism, she dresses herself in layman's clothes and wears a hat. Any child pretending Let's preserve all the natural that she was conducting a Baptism according to Episcopal rites would have Fifthly, immersion is very seldom practiced in any Episcopal church. have never been present at one, and I have seen many baptisms. Public Investment

A recent debate in the legislature had to do with the development of the Peace River. But the significance of the debate is much wider than B.C. and bears on the future of Canada.

In the House the NDP condemned the spending of public money on the Peace project as irresponsible. They claim that the Bennett government deploying profits from the operation the B.C. N Bergamo, Italy, they're putting boys to I sleep in class and claiming excellent re-sults from the technique. I think they may have something, but not exactly the way they mean. The Bergamo experi-ment is the now familiar education through the subconscious after the appli-cation of hypnotism. My experience and it didn't store up any knowledge for reproduction later in examinations — depended solely on the hypnotism of spring, usually in lilac a An aging and incurable romantic looks back fondly on those days. A strengthening sun lanced through the classroom's open windows. Bees murmured, bumbling about the vases of purple and white blooms. Dust motes hung in the air and drowsiness was penetrated by the voice of a teacher reading her small First Reader class the stories of Br'er Rabbit, Reddy the Fox and Grandfather

Perhaps I did not sleep. Certainly I dreamed. Through my small boy's mind floated visions of incredible heroism performed for our teacher, daring rescues, feats of gallantry. I wonder now if the ecstatic devout ever attain the adoration we in that school room showered on Miss Edith Edwards. The bell that gave us freedom to play outdoors rang all too soon, separating us from the one to whom we were devoted.

A grade higher and my affections had anged. My heart belonged to the eightyear-old girl with big brown eyes, long brown ringlets and the tidy brown velvet dress who sat across the aisle. Again, in the sun of spring, I dreamed, molding my visions of sweet innocence, all centred on her.

She lived on Richmond Road and in class we sang "Sweet Lass of Richmond Hill." It was the one song to which I could raise my voice enthusiastically, though Mr. Pollard, when he came to give us lessons, seemed to like "John Peel" better. In the class post box before Christmas holidays that year, she sent me a card painted by herself a large Christmas pudding, sprigged with holly, on that rough brown paper we used for art. Oh, yes. I've had my moments.

So on up to high school and more springs that brought bouquets of lilac to the window sill and sent a freshened sun shafting in on us at study: Somehow Caesar's Gallic Wars drifted gently off into more pleasant fictions in which the hero ceased to be the epileptic of Rome and became a slightly underweight prelim at Oak Bay.

This was the stage of more sophisticated romance, marked by notes daringly passed and the sickly making of calves eyes, the dawdling, round-about walk home, swinging a young lady's books on their strap, and the fumbling arrangements for house parties that were an agony of formality in the first suit of long pants.

It was also the time of a new pain in the heart when the object of my affections chose to go with the boy whose family owned a car and who was also my friend. This was a sort of Enoch Arden stage, stepping down for the happiness of the beloved.

By the end of the year my psyche was equally compounded of a wounded Galahad and dying swan. Sometimes I think it has never recovered.

All this varies somewhat from the objective of the Bergamo sleeping-in-class-as-a-means-to-acquiring-facts method of educa-tion, But in a certain maudlingly senti-mental ways it supports the Italian experilearned, but the pupil-teacher idolatry is as fresh as yesterday. From the grade above I have carried with me only the tune of "Sweet Lass of Richmond Hill." And when I have said "Caesar castra ponit" I've spent almost half the Latin stored from days of high school study.

What I ingested as dreams, the compan ions of sleep, I have retained. Yet I have some misgivings about this approach to the unconscious mind. If the wrong stuff is fed to it, how do you cleanse the mental slate?

In my own case, the family had a simple remedy-large doses of sulphur and mo lasses, a fair counter-agent to springtime

TALK IT OVER

Mr. Pearson made a distinction between French-Cana dians and immigrants to Can ada. Immigrants of many races, he said, had made a contribution to Canada, but they had not transformed Canada's basis of development. This still rested on the English and French-speaking Canadians, "Everything must rotate around this axis," he said. "I we break it, nothing will re-main. If we maintain it, we will go forward."

The best way to deal with the grievances of Quebec, he suggested, was to "sit down and talk it over together." This could be done by a special "national commission," set up by the federal government in co-operation with the provinces to study the problem and suggest concrete measures to solve it.

All young Canadians must be given the chance to become "truly bilingual," Mr. Pearson said. This was an objective difficult to reach because the provinces had control over equcation. Yet co-operation could be achieved. In addition. French-Canadians should be

By JIMMY CANNON

SARASOTO, Fla. In a story telegraphed from the New York Yankee's exercise grounds, a baseball journalist re-ported that Yogi Berra, now functioning as handy man when he isn't working as a catcher, reprimanded the batters because some of them neglected to put on the plastic buckets to shield their skulls from pitched balls. The hitters are still flipped by the knock-down pitch but it is a sureptitious device which is described by the throwers as an inno-

It is their lying contention that the ball which tumbles up a hitter couldn't be controlled or is designed to force the batter to surrender some of the terrain in the hitter's box which the pitchers insist belongs to them. When I originally rode the trains on road trips, the pitch wasn't described as a brush-back, but was discussed publicly as a missile as a brush-back, but was discussed publicly as a missile aimed to strike the opposition.

If pitchers didn't use it, they were considered yellow by their own species. Only agility protected the better then because the batting derby is a comparatively recent innova-

The most ferocious of all pitching staffs worked for the Chicago Cubs. Batters denounced Pat Malone, Guy Bush and Charlie Root as the cruelest of their kind.

Diz Lost Fast One, But Not Anger

"If you didn't get knocked down three times in a game with the Cubs." Mel Ott once remembered, "you figured you were washed up."

you were washed up.

"When Dizzy Dean came to Chi, the fog on his fast ball had evaporated but his anger hadn't. I came in to Wrigley Field with the Dodgers the first season Dean was on the Cubs' payroll.
"Where you going next," Dean asked me.

"St. Louis," I replied.
"Give Joe Medwick a message," the great pitcher told "Tell that Hungarian . . . he's going down every time he comes up."

In pullman forums, Malone, who came to the Yankees as a relief pitcher, argued constantly that Billy Herman was a more skillful second baseman than Charlie Gehringer and the pitchers in the American League were cowardly philanthropists. It offended Malone because Del Baker, then the third-base coach for the Tigers, had made a reputation calling the curve ball for Hank Greenberg. The coach anticipated the snake, as the curve was called in the dug-outs, and identified it by a shouted code.

If Boss Called It, Casey Threw It

It was Malone's continuously repeated plan to show Baker the curve and then to throw the fast ball at Greenberg's head. It was Malone's claim that if such an occurrence happened in the National League, the batter would get time in a hospital bed to reflect that such support from a coach could arrange a sudden funeral.

Put into the game, to relieve Lefty, Comez Malone.

Put into the game to relieve Lefty Gomez. Malone couldn't wait for Greenberg. The lead-off hitter in the inning was Goose Goslin. The first pitch struck Goslin in the forehead. Malone, trudging behind his wobbly lump of a belly, approached Baker, whom he insisted had signaled the curve that Malone hadn't thrown.

"You keep calling it." Malone said, "and I'll keep knocking them down."

once I asked Hugh Casey, then a Dodger enforcer, if it disturbed him to strike batters with pitches.

"I work for the manager," replied Casey, "It's up. to him. If he says brush him back, that's what I do. If he wants me to hit him in the head, I do. He's the boss. It ain't up to me."

Pitchers Pretend Pitch Is Obsolete

In the seasons when the old St. Louis Cardinals were scrambling for pennants, Leo Durocher was their shortstop, in a close game, the Cards were trying to hold onto a onerun lead over the Giants in the ninth inning. Infuriated for a reason Durocher couldn't comprehend, Dean threw twice at Hank Lieber. The shortstop ran to the pitcher's mound at Hank Lieber. The shortstop ran to the pitcher's mound and advised Dean to stop throwing at Lieber who would be the tying run if he walked or was struck by a batted ball. "I like to see him rolling around in the dirt." Dean told Durocher, who recollected that the pitcher then changed his mind and got Lieber out. The bucket has done its work well. I remember Jackie Robinson getting up, wobbly but unhurt, after the peak of the plastic hat had been split by a fast ball. Batters now scream that the guys who use the head pitch are potential murderers. The pitchers deny they employ it but it is still ...common-pitch...Recently, Lasked Joe Di Maggio about it. fishermen in the past few years, the Amalgamated Con-servation Society is waging a campaign to obtain a more equitable share of coho and spring salmon for sportsmen and to protect the future of B.C. salmon fishing.

Representing 12 Lower Island organizations, members of the society have drawn up a list of proposals they believe would benefit the salmon fishery.

These proposals have been incorporated in a brief. presented to J. Angus MacLean, federal minister of fisheries, and later distributed to almost 300 interested individuals and organizations.

Through the brief, the society hopes to make the fisheries chief and many others better acquainted with the problems of sports fishermen on the B.C. coast.

Because of the widespread interest of Island anglers in the ACS campaign, The Daily Times is printing the brief in daily installments.

Here is the fourth installment:

SALMON REHABILITATION

Increasing pressure by sports and commercial fishermen during the past few years on our runs of spring and coho salmon will continue to grow, making it necessary for the government to institute a crash program on spring and coho rehabilitation. Past efforts of fisheries department are commendable in this field but these efforts have been mainly directed towards the net salmon species such as pinks, sock eyes, and chum salmon. It is now time to put forth a major program for the reproduction of spring and coho. Washington State has taken the lead in this field with encouraging results. Canada may not be in the position to invest similar amounts of money. but a much larger amount than the present program is war-Our commercial fishermen on the grounds off the West Coast of Vancouver Island claim the majority of coho harvested from this area last season were American. Canada should follow Washington's lead.

As to the financing of reproduction efforts a levy of a few cents a pound could be assessed on commercial fishing catches. The fish companies could also be assessed a small amount for the same purpose.

Salt water sports fishermen could be assessed $2 for a salmon licence with monies received earmarked for salmon reproduction. Some guarantee as to where funds would be used, and for what species of salmon, would be needed to make this program acceptable. Both sports and commer-cial fishermen should subscribe to this proposal if all monies received were used on reproduction efforts. SPORTS FISHING

The limit of eight salmon in the aggregate should be reduced to four. The 12-inch grifse limit should be abandoned, as many undersized grilse are injured before being returned to the water.

River mouth fishing inside the boundaries in undevel-oped areas should be curtailed before commercial developments are established, except at such times when stocks ex-ceed maximum spawning requirements, i.e., Toba River, Phillips Arm, Nimpkish River.

Other river mouth areas where fishing resorts are established should have the catch limits reduced to two salmon over 10 pounds a day for sports fishermen.

An immediate stop to fishing spawning salmon in rivers and streams should be imposed. The taking of a spawning salmon off a spawning bed is likened to shooting a hen pheasant on a nest.

POLLUTION, WATERSHEDS, ETC

Water pollution, indiscriminate logging in watership and power projects have caused a heavy mortality rate to our salmon runs in past years. The federal government is to be congratulated on its stand with regard to the Puntledge River project and the effect on the salmon reproduction in this particular river. It is hoped the federal government will implement tighter regulations in the futur

Proposed pulp mills on rivers supporting salmon should be investigated closely and at least be instructed to solve the pollution problem and come forth with methods to assure safe escapement in future years.

Logging stands which effect runoff conditions on streams supporting salmon should not be logged unless a patchwork system can be worked out which will not adversely affect water conditions.

Future power developments must be closely controlled by the fisheries department with necessary safeguards so as to prevent adverse effects on salmon runs. (To be continued.

the association in Toronto, "We know such an organ-ization exists," Mr. Willis said. "Being under government su-pervision, it could not function on the same free, inde-pendent lines as our own. But it is at least a sign that the Iron Curtain is thinner than

Mr. Willis believes the ris ing generation in both east ever before in history.

FEAR, HOPE

"This may be largely due to fear of world destruction, but it is also bound up with hope and fear and hope are often inseparable

Mr. Willis revealed that United Nations Association now operates in 51 countries of the world and has 35 branches in Canada with a Canadian membership exceeding

Its main purpose, he said is to instruct people every where in the methods by which the United Nations or ganization reduces world ten ons through international negotiation.

ATTRACT SUPPORT

"Our task is not to help fi support of men women who understand what the UN is trying to accomplish—and how."

A retired businessman, Mr Willis is chairman of a volun tary committee se up by Ca nadian headquarters of the UN Association to raise funds for continuation of its work

"Our goal this year is $70, this sum during a three-wee campaign across Canada start ing some time in April."

To that end, Mr. Willis is meeting leading citizens in major Canadian cities.

"We raise about $45,000 a year from membership fees," he said. "To this is added a grant of $11,000 from the federal government and revenue from the sale of UN literature. But we need another $70,000 to carry on our work effectively and I am confident it can be raised.

"We are fortunate in that every Canadian is in sympathy with our aims—and all are welcome as members."

I keep hearing from people who believe in Caddy, despite the fact they never quite got around to entering the "I Believe" Contest.

And these people are quite serious about believing in the fun-loving sea screent who was first spotted in Cadborn Bay, thus acquiring the name "Cadborosaurus."

One indignant gentleman telephoned me at home to berate me for taking a facetious attitude toward a serious matter, and to tell me there are many things beneath the ocean wave of which man knows nothing.

A postcard which typifies the sentiments of many Caddy-believers is this one: "I know several people who have seen-our sea serpent, even if I haven't been so lucky. Let's hope someone will soon get a good picture of him."

-a standing offer from the Times.) One of the more intriguing Caddy letters I've received is from a Duncan lady who has seen Caddy's "offspring" but has kept silent about it for over 20 years, for fear of ridicule.

So I'll keep her name to myself as she writes: It was one very hot afternoon about the second week In August, 1941, when my son and I were rowing over from Moses Beach to the government wharf at Deep Cove, Saanteh. Almost halfway over I was trailing my hands in the tepid water when I spied a long object lying on the surface,

"It had a film over its eyes which quickly uncovered when it's aw the boat or heard the noise of the rowlocks.

Y The eyes were brown and the goat shaped head had little ears—color was deep tan, lighter by far than the eyes.
When I saw it first it was about 10 or 12 feet from the boat and was stretched fully four feet long on the surface. I didn't see the end of its tail.

"When it awoke, it came immediately into action by raising its head and making two humps along its back. travelled at no leisurely speed, I can tell you. Seemed the wiggle of the humps made it go forward.

While I was calling to my son to look quickly, the object disappeared and the only thing my son saw were the swirls in the water where the creature went under.
"I am sure what I saw was a 'baby Caddy'."

And I am not going to argue. My own stand in the matter of Cadborosaurus is based on the legal precept that a man is presumed innocent until

Toronto's Association Women Electors Organized Quarter Century; Stays in Civic Fields

you're talking about take a stand and stick with it-this is hadvice the Association of nen Electors of Toronto is giving women in other cities who want to know the key to its success

EARN RESPECT

In 25 years, this small nonpartisan group, has earned the respect of city council and municipal officials and of the vot-ing public, for its informed opinions on civic issues. It has received inquiries from Ottawa, Calt and Regina, where women are interested in forming similar groups.

"Our success is not due to numbers but rather a small core of hard workers," says immediate past president Mrs. G. S. Vickers, explaining why the association never promotes membership with great drive. "Now we have about 33 we are so busy we don't even have time to take accurate count."

Their working technique is observing and reporting. A member attends all metropolitan and city council meetings. board of control and executive,

standing board and committee

GROUP FORMED IN VICTORIA

Association of Women Electors, organized in Victoria last September has adopted the Toronto group's constitution. Membership is open to any woman interested in learning know what's going on. And you don't observe long before you are prompted to criticize and make suggestions.'

While observers report all meetings, the association is particularly interested in welfare, education, housing and parks.

In 1941, three years after its formation, the association cam-paigned successfully for a standing committee on public wel-fare. It zealously supported the drive for public housing which resulted in Regent Park North, Canada's first public housing kindergartens, a parks directory and the preservation of Toronto Island for recreation.

WIN RESULTS

The extension of municipal franchise and the appointment of women poll clerks and returning officers resulted from its proddings.

Before municipal election the group holds candidates' meetings in all city wards "something no one else will be bothered with and often the first time an unknown aspirant

But members of the associa tion are modest and reluctant to estimate their influence. Because they have the entree and know-how in civic government, many people want to use them on boards and committees and seek their endorsement of programs and policies. 'And we are the great unknown to the elected represen-tative. He can never be sure how powerful we are," says. Mrs. Vickers.

RIVER LIFE KILLED BY CYANIDE

SANT ANTONINO (UPI) A "eyanide psychosis" to-day hung over the tiny villages along the banks of the Dora Riparia, northwestern Italy's "river of death."

Thirty pounds of poisonous sodium cyanide from an ap-sodium cyanide from an appliance plant were dumped into the river by mistake Saturday, killing an estimated 500,000 trout and other fish, 25,000 birds, 3,500 wild rabbits and 200 foxes.

News of the poisoned water spread fear of human deaths but none has been reported so far. Health authorities said the poison now has been diluted sufficiently so that there is little chance the river water would kill a river water would kill

"Only a miracle prevented the accident from becoming a major disaster," a local official said. He said a number of farmers picked up fish dying from the poison, cleaned, cooked and ate them.

Health officials said the poison apparently had not spread to the edible parts of the fish that were still alive when they were landed.

Poison Gas Charges Win Some Belief

SAIGON (AP) - Communist charges that the United States and South Viet Nam are using poison gas in the guerrilla war here have caused little official reaction, but there are indica-tions the propaganda campaign has had some effect in the coun tryside.

Communist China announced during the weekend it had pro-tested to the International Red Cross about use of poison gas in South Viet Nam by "U.S. imperialism."

U.S. officials here and in Washington denied the charge. But in some provinces, particularly in the northern high-lands and in the Mekong River delta, many peasants appar ently believe it.

Demonstrations by women and children, presumably or-ganized by the rebel Viet Cong, have been held several times in the important provincial capital of Ben Tre, 45 miles southwest f Saigon.
Communist North Viet Nam

has been hammering at the theme for a year with little in-ternational reaction. The campaign began when U.S. Air Force C-123 transports began experimenting with a plant-killing spray to deprive the guer-rillas of ambush cover along roads and canals.

The crowd responded with applause and laughter in uncertain proportions.

So went this emotional first person campaign against "them," the Liberals. The prime minister "arried the message" a mesage more personal than governmental to the hustings of Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario, before moving on to Quebec this week.

Everywhere he drew big crowds, some of them over flowing. "Everybody's against me but the people," he said, quoting Harry Truman's re-

He said that Canada's eight chartered banks have legal authority to multiply credit by 12³/₂ times.

This means in practice that the commercial banks could lend $12,500 for every $1,000 bond issued to them by the federal government.

A Social Credit government, Mr. Cacuette said, would merely transfer this system of multiplying credit to the Bank of Canada

I keep hearing from people who believe in Caddy, de spite the fact they never quite got around to entering the 'I Believe" Contest.

- And these people are quite serious about believing in the fun-loving sea serpent who was first spotted in Cadboro Bay, thus acquiring the name "Cadborosaurus."

One indignant gentleman telephoned me at home to be the fort taking a facetious attitude toward a serious matter, and to tell me there are many things beneath the ocean wave of which man knows nothing.

A postcard which typifies the sentiments of many Caddy-believers is this one: "I know several people who have seen our sea serpent, even if I haven't been so lucky. Let's hope someone will soon get a good picture of him."

One of the more intriguing Caddy letters I've received is from a Duncan lady who has seen Caddy's "offspring" but has kept silent about it for over 20 years, for fear of ridicule.

So I'll keep her name to myself as she writes: "It was one very hot afternoon about the second week in August, 1941, when my son and I were rowing over from Moses Beach to the government wharf at Deep Cove, Saan-Almost halfway over I was trailing my hands in the tepid water when I spied a long object lying on the surface,

'It had a film over its eyes which quickly uncovered when it saw the boat or heard the noise of the rowlocks. The eyes were brown and the goat-shaped head had little ears—color was deep tan, lighter by far than the eyes. When I saw it first it was about 10 or 12 feet from the boat

When I saw it first it was about to or 12 feet from the boat and was stretched fully four feet long on the surface. I didn't see the end of its tail.

"When it awoke, it came immediately into action by raising its head and making two humps along its back. It travelled at no leisurely speed, I can tell you. Seemed the wiggle of the humps made it go forward. While I was calling to my son to look quickly, the object disappeared and the only thing my son saw were the swirls in the water where the creature went under.

"I am sure what I saw was a 'baby Caddy'."

And I am not going to argue.

My own stand in the matter of Cadborosaurus is based on the legal precept that a man is presumed innocent until Briskly to work on Tuesday with the introduction of bills to amend this act or that. Then Mr. Speaker retires from his cavern under the restless feet of the press gallery, down goes the mace in Sergeant - at - Arms Ashby's white gloved hands, and once more our House is in committee of supply.

Plowing through the bluecovered book of estimates, we've come to Health Minis-Martin's Short of Premier Bennett himself, there's no one more capable of raising opposi on blood-pressure than Mr Martin-and no minister. I suspect, who more enjoys baiting embattled Liberal and NDP.

Our cross-floor members plunge directly into the fray, while the minister sits de mure as a matron knitting Little Things, spectacles twinkling and sparse pelage neatly combed.

First to Attack

First to the attack is David Barrett of Dewdney brilliant young NDP who on graduating from Vancouver's Britannia High School chose University of Washington over UBC because it was cheaper, and worked his way through.

Medicare, Mr. Barrett wants; a complete plan with or without federal aid. He urges a stepped-up program retarded and emotionally disturbed children, railing bitterly at Mr. Martin's department for inaction.

A nine-year-old boy goes to Brannen Lake because this province has "no physical resources for treatment of emotionally disturbed child up to the age of 17." Woodlands, the mainland institution for retarded children, has a waiting list of over 700. Health and welfare depart ment heel-dragging, Mr. Barrett charges, has also contributed to teen age alcohol-
